

Honor, Courage, Commitment

“The willingness with which our young people are likely to serve in any war, shall be directly proportional to how they perceive the Veterans of earlier wars were treated and appreciated by their nation.”

(George Washington, First President, US)

Caring for Those Who Served Us

VA Nebraska-Western Iowa Health Care System

Commitment

President Abraham Lincoln put the contract between the government and its service members into words when he stated that the obligation of our government was:

“To care for him who shall have borne the battle...”

Over the years, our military service has become diversified, which reflects the culture and diversity of our nation. That has been the contract between the federal government and its citizen soldiers since the republic was formed. Through their dedication and faithfulness, Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) employees are honored to have the opportunity to serve those men and women who have given so much in the defense of freedom.

Veterans

The vast majority of Veterans served during conflict as volunteers or draftees. They served this country with honor. When they entered military service, they were promised they would earn certain benefits based upon their service to this country. When they were discharged or retired from the military, they were again told that our grateful nation would provide certain benefits and services for them.

VA—Putting Veterans First

Caring and compassion are at the heart of everything VA does for Veterans. This concept is rooted in VA heritage. In an effort to foster greater communications among the Veteran community, we have developed an “outreach” program to ensure all Veterans that we have not forgotten their selfless service. Our outreach efforts are to keep the promise to serve those who have served us so valiantly.

Speaker’s Bureau

To ensure that VA benefit programs continue as an enduring recognition of the sacrifices made by Veterans, program presentations are available to educate Veterans and the public about the importance of Veterans’ health care benefits. Speakers are available to make presentations to civic clubs and organizations.
